Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurBefore his death at the age of 89, Doc Watson was the true voice of Appalachian music. After being discovered in 1960 by folklorist Ralph Rinzler, the blind guitarist graced thousands of American stages with his down-home wit, deep knowledge of traditional songs, and his blistering flatpicking guitar. Over 52 years in the music business, Doc influenced every musician with a pulse, from Bob Dylan to Jerry Garcia, and from Gillian Welch to Pete Seeger.QUOTES FROM THE BOOK I never heard an off night from Doc Watson ever, ever, ever. Taj MahalWhen you listen to what Doc is doing on the guitar, it hits you right in the soul. Warren HaynesWhen you hear Doc Watson singing Amazing Grace, something else enters the room. Ben HarperDoc takes in the larger universe and makes it come out on the guitar. Bill FrisellI recorded Strawberry Jam with Doc at MerleFest. After we played the set, I said, Oh my God, that was as good as sex! Michelle ShockedDoc is a force of nature. Without Doc, there would have been no anchor for the last 40 years to keep us remembering the simplicity of the old tunes. Peter RowanThere isnt a musician anywhere who isnt saying My God, Ill never even get close to that. Mike MarshallYou can feel the joy in Docs playing and hear it in his voice and the way he talks to the audience. You can just feel the joy. Sam BushDoc is a major link in the chain of American roots music. David GrismanDoc has an unwavering authenticity in his playing, in his singing, and in his character. Tommy EmmanuelWe owe Doc Watson a lot for being such a musical genius, for breaking down barriers, and for giving us a direction to go in. Jerry
